Construction and the Built Environment

Construction Management

BSc (Hons)

BSc (Hons) Construction and the Built Environment (Construction Management)

This apprenticeship is an ideal opportunity for both existing and new entrants to the construction industry who are seeking a career in Construction Management.

RGU works together with employers to formalise, fine tune and develop the apprentice's experiences and enhance their skills to produce effective and dynamic construction professionals to work in a highly diverse and challenging multi-disciplinary industry.

Apprenticeship Highlights

This apprenticeship develops the apprentice's skills and experience in the construction management disciplines of building technology, design, project management and commercial and business management.

The apprenticeship integrates theory and practice from the outset to provide a range of practical skills for managing construction projects.

Apprentices will be involved in assessing projects' commercial viability, solving design, technical and construction problems, managing work activities and resources to provide innovative and efficient solutions to constructing complex projects.

Graduates of the apprenticeship may embark on a range of career pathways including working on landmark development projects such as housing, offices, hotels and commercial development schemes.

The course has been awarded Accredited Centre status by the Chartered Institute of Building (CIOB)

Career Enhancement

A Graduate Apprenticeship synchronises theoretical learning with practical experience. Graduate Apprenticeships offer benefits to both the employee and the employer, meeting the long-term development needs of both the business and the apprentice.

Employees exiting with a Graduate Apprenticeship degree qualification could enhance their careers in a wide range of possible job roles including:

- Graduate Construction Manager
- Contract Manager
- Project Manager
- Health and Safety Officer
- Risk Management
- Development Manager
